A contemporary bathroom in which the modern character has been accentuated by traditional design features. Bringing classical detailing to a contemporary aesthetic was the core principle at the heart of this project. The brief given to Latham Interiors was to create an elegant feel while maintaining an overall sense of calm.

A muted grey tiling pattern provided a foundation of sophistication for a contemporary and sleek interior to be created. The free standing white bath, seamless shower and geometric accessories all exemplify the clean and unembellished design ethos at the core of many contemporary spaces.

Taking design cues from the Arts & Crafts movement, the flowing curvilinear facets of the Samuel Heath brassware are perfectly suited against the clean curved lines of the bath. The classical forms of the Fairfield collection coincide with the classically shaped vanity unit and traditional light fittings. The crystal levers exude luxury and the contemporary elements of the taps demonstrate the way in which tradition and contemporary aesthetics flow together in this luxurious, yet tranquil bathroom environment.

A classic Georgian home with a modern twist

Charlotte Conway Design has become synonymous with the creation of unique bathroom environments that utilise modern practices which accentuate the classic features of the homes Charlotte works with.

A keen collector of fine art and beautifully crafted bespoke furniture, the client wanted their dated Master en-suite to reflect their love of classical design, but with a modern twist.

This design showcases the very best of British craftsmanship; the Samuel Heath Swarovski crystal brassware glistens in the mood lit bathroom. Lighting has been carefully considered, to allow the clients to truly pamper themselves. The marriage between marble, crystal and mother of pearl present the utmost luxury and classical design.

In the second bathroom, Swarovski crystal levers have been employed again and in this context are perfectly suited to the bespoke designed mirror that accounts for much of the wall space in this bathroom. The lever controls and mirror like chrome finish ensure that the space feels light and open, creating a truly unique bath experience.

The gloss black chrome controls of Style Moderne fit comfortably in the third room, where the brassware and tiles are reminiscent of the luxurious 1920's Art Deco aesthetic. The striking geometric lines of the wall mounted tap and concealed shower stand out against the curvilinear highlights that run through the tiles.

The final bathroom incorporates the minimalist Xenon collection which suits the understated and contemporary feel of this en-suite. The custom free standing stone basin helps to give the space an organic resonance and softens the angular forms and simplistic design of the taps and shower.

Contemporary styling creates a boutique feel in this 19th century cottage en-suite. This luxurious bathroom is the main en-suite in a period cottage dating back to 1824. As part of a wider renovation project, the current residents were looking to complement the unique period features of the cottage with more contemporary styling, and wanted their bathroom to have a real 'wow factor', boutique hotel feel. Combining minimalist and classic brassware, the couple mixed the crisp clean lines of a Samuel Heath Xenon shower rose, with the softer curves of Samuel Heath's Fairfield collection for the shower valve and basin taps.

The hand-finished, carefully crafted brassware contrasts beautifully against the feature pearlescent wall, chosen to offer a dramatic, bold design in the simple cottage en-suite. The pearlescent effect reflects daylight or becomes iridescent with the LED coloured lights.

Challenged with covering conventionally uneven walls, large tiles were chosen for the main walls with floor and finger tiles used to wrap around the curve of the window reveal to create the perfect bathroom sanctuary.

Villa Honegg Hotel and Spa

When award winning design company, Jestico + Whiles was commissioned to specify the interior of the luxury five star Villa Honegg Hotel at Ennetbürgen, Switzerland, the company set out to renew the guest experience in a way that would reflect the hotel's striking mountain setting. Combining contemporary design with the heritage of the beautiful period building, the inspiration found in the panoramic lake and mountain views from each bedroom has been used to create stunning boutique bathrooms for each guest, bringing an element of the hotel's grand setting inside. Jestico + Whiles worked alongside Samuel

Heath, using the dedicated service for designers and architects provided through our London showroom at the Design Centre Chelsea Harbour. The service offers one-to-one support for any size specification project, from initial product selection through to project management. The team from Samuel Heath worked with the interior design company to specify the guest bathrooms and spa areas. Fairfield taps and showers were selected for their classic motifs and rich character. Samuel Heath Fairfield showers are also featured in the spa, creating synergy between the wet room spaces.
